A LOT of documentation about RDA and its changes is included on this website because the Library of Congress, through the PCC, is driving the creation of new task forces and committees to make those changes or additions to the new standard. In particular see the “RDA and PCC” section as well as the “RDA Training” section. <http://www.loc.gov/aba/pcc/>

Library of Congress Documentation for the RDA (Resource Description and Access) Test: RDA Test Record Downloads / U.S. RDA Test Coordinating Committee. If you want to see examples of records done under the 2010-2011 RDA test period this is the place to go. One caveat however, things have changed since that test period, e.g., the 264 field was implemented in 2012, and so some records may not completely show current RDA practice. <http://www.loc.gov/catdir/cps0/RDAtest/rdatestrecords.html>
